As a former athlete, model, and martial artist, Elisabetta focuses her designs on quality, durability, and femininity--believing that "Simplicity is the Essence of Elegance". Born in Terni, Italy, Elisabetta has attended several prestigious academies including KOEFIA Academy in Rome, the University of Perugia, and Academy of the Arts in Perugia.

Upon arriving in Los Angeles, Elisabetta worked as a designer/stylist with entertainment industry heavyweights including photographers and directors such as Hiro, George Hurrel, Greg Gorman, Herb Ritts, Matthew Rolston, Melvin Sokolsky, Michael Bay and Phillip Dixon.

Elisabetta's interest and skill in all areas of beauty and styling brought her positions such as a designer/image maker/stylist for prominent celebrities from Isabella Rossellini for Lancome, Gloria Estafan's World Wide Tour and Olympic stage appearance in 1996, Christy Turlington for Maybelline, Zalman King's "Red Shoes Diaries" television series, to Pamela Anderson in her "VIP" television series. She went on to be a fashion editor/writer at LA Style and View Magazine. BCBG's first fashion designer, Elisabetta also designed for Z. Cavaricci, Emilio Cavallini, Fiourucci and Claude Montana prior to launching her first clothing company and starting her Couture Fitness line.
